ABSTRACT: The information revolution and its impact on businesses, academic life and everyday life is still receiving much attention at conferences, in business publications and academic journals. This paper addresses some important opportunities created by the information technology (r)evolution for maintenance management. It also indicates how IT is already actively used in a number of normal working situations and points to possible new uses.

ABSTRACT: Enterprise systems used to be concerned mainly with the activities within the four walls of a plant. Those days are long gone, both for enterprise resources planning systems and maintenance management systems. The list of the 1998 Manufacturing Systems Software top ERP and maintenance management systems firms is presented, and ERP and maintenance management systems firms are each briefly profiled.
